Social participation – Public events are activities that are open to the community for the purpose of entertainment or socializing. Social isolation and loneliness are major factors that affect health and well-being. This section is about activities that help people feel connected to one another. This might include religious activities, movies, concerts, plays, clubs, classes, or gambling.

Civic participation and employment – Volunteering includes opportunities to engage in meaningful service in the community as a non-paid member of an organization. Employment involves payment. Civic participation includes voting, participation in elections and engagement with government.

Communication and information – Timely, clear information is important for many tasks, such as accessing community services or obtaining health care. People also use social media to connect with other people as well as to learn about the news, events and activities, or advice.

Outdoor spaces and buildings – Outdoor spaces include sidewalks, streets, state and local parks, and green spaces as well as buildings you may need to access for services or shopping.

Housing – Housing refers to living spaces that are safe and affordable and provide essential services when properly maintained. As peoples' health changes, their needs for housing may also change. Some people may need to consider moving to a new home or a different community.

Transportation – Transportation includes the full range of ways people get around, from walking to personal vehicles to purchased private or public services.

Health services and community supports – Medical needs can be met with a wide variety of health services and supports. These include services from health care professionals as well as long-term care services that allow a person with chronic conditions to live well at home.

Respect and social inclusion – Access to an environment that encourages respect in treatment and interactions, intergenerational activities, and involvement by residents of all ages, abilities and incomes.
